OFFICIAL RANK IN CHINA.

Notes and Duties of the Multitude of Civil Officers.

The French find that in the war with China they have to contend with an army that is well officered, if deficient in every other respect. Civil and military officials are never wanting in the Celestial Kingdom, and are more numerous than in any other country. In any province or town the stranger is surprised to meet every now and then a dignitary wearing a ball or globe on his hat. These balls are called "spheres" properly, and are about an inch in diameter. They serve the same purpose as our "stars, buttons, and bars," in marking the rank of the officer wearing them, and may be seen on the uniforms of the Chinese army. We shall have to hear of the wearers of these spheres frequently before the war is concluded, and a statement of the order of official precedence will be instructive in aiding us to understand the war news. Collectively these men are known as "the two nine ranks," and in a generic sense as "our twenty-nine classes of the able eyes."

Everything is so differently constituted that it is quite impossible to translate the military titles so as to give a comparative idea of Chinese rank. This is made more difficult from the fact that the military officials are generally held in contempt, and precedence in command is given in time of war to talented civilians. Indeed, the civil officials are of the first consideration, and are mentioned before the officials of the army.

In the first class of the civil rank are the six shang shu, or presidents of the six great boards (the shu-tu), who wear a carbuncle sphere at court and a coral in ordinary dress. They are the highest in rank, and are the heads of the provinces, and may be called into the war board. They wear a red sphere. The second class of the second rank are the fan-tai, the provincial secretaries of finance. They wear a red sphere.

In the first class of the third civil rank are the chih-shan, provincial judges. They wear a light blue sphere. The second class of the third rank are the chih-shan, provincial judges. They wear a light blue sphere. The second class of the third rank are the chih-shan, provincial judges. They wear a light blue sphere.

The chih-shan-chih are the first class of the fifth rank, and correspond to the chih-shan, provincial judges. They wear a light blue sphere. The second class of the fifth rank are the chih-shan, provincial judges. They wear a light blue sphere.

Thus in the nine ranks are presidents, governors, vice governors, financial secretaries, provincial judges, and commissioners, collectors, department prefects, and sub-prefects, deputies, district judges, magistrates, and assistant magistrates, and mayors and vice mayors.

He Needed a New Watch.

"Mary" remarked old man Crossman to his wife at breakfast one morning, "was Will Trimble here to see Katie last night?"

"Yes, my dear."

"What time did he leave?"

"I heard him say it was 11 o'clock by his watch as he went out."

"What kind of a watch does he carry?"

"A patent lever, he told a comrade."

"A patent lever, eh? Well, you tell him, with my compliments, that if he wants to remain healthy, he had better change that patent to a 10 o'clock lever. I was young once myself, and know what time of night 11 is by those patent lever watches."

Politics in Pompeii.

Recent researches show that electioneering was carried on in ancient Pompeii very much as at the present day. Inscriptions have been found informing the public that "a vote for Lentulus is a vote for honest government," and asking all patriotic citizens to vote for "Dabbus, the true friend of the people."

Uncle Esck. You can encourage the timid, restrain the bold, punish the wicked, but for the weak there is no help.
